Human Rights and Ethical Use Policy

EXTERNAL / CORPORATE GOVERNANCE / VERSION 1.0

DOCUMENT CODE	EX-05
POLICY OWNER	Leadership / Compliance
STATUS	Approved — Board and both co-founders
REVIEW	At least annually and after material change

01 Purpose

Omniscient aims to respect human rights across its workplace, supply chain, customer relationships and technology applications. This policy establishes minimum requirements and accountability for human rights and ethical use policy across Omniscient Industries Limited ("Omniscient"). Its requirements apply proportionately to the activity, risk and applicable law. Implementation and compliance must be supported by appropriate operational evidence.

02 Application

This approved policy governs the stated public or third-party commitments. External publication must accurately reflect the company's relevant services and actual operating arrangements. Contractual and statutory requirements take priority; any customer-specific terms or product documentation continue to apply where relevant.

03 Policy requirements

3.1 Workers and communities

- Discrimination, harassment, forced labour, human trafficking and unlawful child labour are not acceptable in Omniscient operations.
- Staff and supplier workers should have access to fair treatment, safe conditions and a means to raise concerns without retaliation.
- The business will consider impacts on privacy, equality, freedom from abuse and affected communities in material decisions.

3.2 Product and customer due diligence

- Higher-risk uses of technology, including surveillance, defence, industrial automation and consequential decision support, require proportionate end-use scrutiny.
- Deal teams must identify sanctioned parties, unlawful end uses, unacceptable diversion risks and credible allegations of serious abuse before commitment.
- Omniscient should decline, pause or condition work where risks cannot be sufficiently managed, subject to contract and law.

3.3 Suppliers and remedy

- Procurement should apply proportionate due diligence to labour conditions, subcontracting, worker protections and high-risk geographies.
- Suppliers must be asked to correct substantiated harms and cooperate with reasonable enquiries.
- The company should document meaningful grievances and its response, respecting confidentiality and affected individuals.

3.4 Accountability

- An assigned policy owner should review material human-rights risks and advise directors where escalation is warranted.
- Confidential concerns should be accepted through a designated reporting contact or internal speak-up route.

- A claim of certification, UN endorsement or completed assessment must not be published without independent evidence.

04 Responsibility and escalation

The policy owner is Leadership / Compliance. The responsible executive sponsor must ensure that this policy is translated into working arrangements, that relevant teams understand their duties and that material concerns are considered without unnecessary delay. Business partners should use their nominated Omniscient contact to raise questions; serious suspected misconduct or safety and security risks should be escalated urgently.

05 Evidence, assurance and improvement

The owner should establish practical records, risk reviews, approvals and corrective actions needed to demonstrate application of this policy. Evidence should be proportionate to the risk, handled according to the information classification and retention policies, and reviewed after significant incidents or regulatory change. Do not state that a control, certification, audit or training programme has been completed without supporting evidence.

06 Review, exceptions and approval

This policy has been approved by the Board and both co-founders. Publication and implementation must remain accurate to actual company operations. Changes must be version controlled, and material updates communicated to affected audiences.

6.1 Publication or implementation condition

Do not imply completion of a human-rights impact assessment or membership of external initiatives.
